CONTROL

with one tiny box.

With over 30 years of experience, MHS Technologies is a single source home electronics integration company providing home security, audio, home theatre, lighting control, and electronic integration. Using only top of the line products, their signature personal service, an incredible work ethic and desire for perfection, MHS Technologies has garnered respect from clients, builders, and others in their field.

No need for multiple remotes! You'll only need one tiny box to control your audio, home theatre, temperature, lighting, home security and more.

MHS is your one source for all of your electronic integration needs. Being a one source company isn't just convenient, it's crucial to the quality and efficiency of the project. System integration is impossible when a single project is spread among different low voltage contractors; miscommunication and conflict are inevitable. We solve that by being the "Low Voltage Source" for your project. If a question surfaces, one call and you are speaking with the responsible party.

Our range of services is quite extensive. Whether you need a simple home security system or an entire surveillance system complete with the ability to monitor your home from the internet, we have what you need. We integrate all of your home theatre, audio, lighting, climate controls, HVAC, gate access, telephones and more to be controlled from convenient, discrete panels throughout your home. Plus, the products themselves are noninvasive--speakers and panels are cleverly disguised and televisions are skillfully hidden.
